ENVIRO RISKEXCHANGE

8am - 4pm, Thursday,
October 3rd, 2024

P&J LIVE

Aberdeen AB21 9FX

Introduction

The inaugural Enviro Risk Exchange conference and exhibition brings together industry and technical experts from across the hazardous industries value chain to showcase the best examples of effective environmental risk management, innovation, and good practice.

This unique concept presents an open forum to learn from, share knowledge and collaborate across industry silos with the purpose of driving down lifecycle impacts of hazardous operations. The outcome is a showcase of the sector's strategy and technologies to deliver Net Zero, sustainable development, business improvement and reduced environmental impacts which align with stakeholder expectations.

In the context of hazardous industries, resilience is the capacity to effectively manage risks, mitigate potential hazards, and recover from adverse events or situations. It encompasses preparedness, flexibility, and the ability to learn and improve from experiences, ultimately ensuring the sustainability and continuity of operations, despite the challenges.

Although robust regulatory frameworks, environmental management systems, and stakeholder engagement are essential tools for addressing these challenges, there has never been a better time to exchange our expertise.

Creating this environmental resilience doesn't just reduce an organisation's footprint; it also promotes the well-being and safety of your workforce and assets, enhances reputation, opens doors to new market opportunities, creates competitive advantages, and generates cost savings.

When executed with a strategic mindset, these elements come together to drive transformative business outcomes.

This is creating resilience.
